TO TURN BRITISH DEBT INTO BONDS TO PAY BONUS

Administration Has plan to Guarantee $4,000,000,000 in British Securities to be Sold Here—Proceeds Apply on Debt to U. S. and Then Go to Ex-Service Men.

(Copyright, 1922, by the International News Service.)

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Jan. 12.—Four billion dollars' worth of British government bonds, underwritten by the United States government, will provide for the soldiers' bonus, if the present plan of administration leaders, decided upon today, is carried out.

Administration leaders are understood to be prepared to go before the country with such a plan intended at once to take care of adjusted compensation for American ex-service men and the British indebtedness to the United States.

It is estimated that four billion dollars' worth of British securities, guaranteed by the United States government, will find a ready market in this country if offered for general sale, and will lead to an early and speedy solution of the difficult problem confronting the administration relative to the soldiers' bonus and the foreign debt.

As a practical business proposition, administration leaders believe that the plan will meet with popular approval.

Negotiations between the American and the British governments relative to the new plan for a satisfactory readjustment of the British debt are said to have been started since the beginning of the present armament conference.

It is pointed out that the value of British bonds underwritten by the United States could not be overestimated and that if they were placed on sale they would have a tendency to bring about a marked improvement in economic and financial conditions generally both here and abroad.

It is also explained that the present plan for the linking of soldier bonus with the refunding of the foreign debt, was discussed at considerable length at the conference which took place Saturday night between President Harding, Secretary of War Weeks and Attorney General Daugherty, on one hand, and Republican leaders of congress, who included Senator McCumber of North Dakota, the new chairman of the senate finance committee, Representative Madden of Illinois, chairman of the house appropriations committee, and Representative Fordney of Michigan, chairman of the house ways and means committee, on the other.

Republican National Chairman John T. Adams took a leading part in the conference at which it was agreed that the issue presented by the soldiers' bonus and the foreign debt must be met by the Republican party in the coming congressional campaign in a way that would prove satisfactory to the American people. It was pointed out to the American people, it was suggested, that the American government is prepared to enter into a financial arrangement with its chief debtor whereby four billion dollars worth of bonds, guaranteed by the two wealthiest nations of the entire world, are to be offered for sale as a means of overcoming the main obstacles in the way of world prosperity, there could hardly be any reasonable objection to such a plan. While the president and his advisers first favored a sales or some other form of tax as a means of financing the soldiers' bonus, it was finally agreed that the most practicable method of meeting the issue would be acceptance of the proposal that Great Britain's indebtedness to this country be turned into bonds, which, underwritten by the United States, would be sure to provide all necessary funds to finance whatever ex-service men's adjusted compensation may have to be provided for. The rate tentatively decided upon for the bonus, is $1.25 a day for each soldier. It is estimated that fully 72 percent of those eligible for compensation, will accept the cash bonus, which would consume practically all of the $4,000,000,000 raised through the British bond issue.

BIGGEST SIGN POINTS TO BRIDGE

S. Cohen's Sons, Wall street clothiers, have just erected one of the world's largest bulletin boards along the state highway near Port Ewen. The sign contains nearly 1,500 square feet and is as long as a fair sized city block. The letters alone are nearly as tall as a street car.

The sign is not alone devoted to advertising the firm's business but is so phrased that it boasts, with equal boldness, the city of Kingston. The sign will be so lettered that it will point the way to the new Rondout creek bridge, a large arrow will point the way and the distance, 2 miles, will be placed on the board. The distance, 4 miles, to S. Cohen's Sons store will also be given.

In the word Kingston the letters are over six feet tall and occupy about 400 square feet. It is the broad-minded policy of the firm that whatever boosts Kingston, boosts the individual merchant.

The very size of this bulletin and the high class manner in which it is executed, impresses every passerby on his way to Kingston. It impresses the millions of people who travel over the road with the big way in which things are done in Kingston and stands as a mammoth reminder to Kingstonians of his possibilities in their enterprising city.

It is the intention of the firm to erect in time eight of these gigantic signs along the roads leading to Kingston.

MOTORMAN WINS ARGUMENT OVER RIGHT OF WAY

But Car Lost Its Passengers In Meantime.

An argument in which no one profited was staged this morning on Fair street near the corner of Maiden Lane. The participants were Motorman Roe of the Kingston Trolley Company, a driver of a milk sleigh and Officer Fatum of the Kingston Police Department. Officer Fatum settled the argument. A trolley car in charge of Motorman Roe and Conductor William Beadle was coming upon just as a light milk sleigh was going down the street. The snow was piled up high alongside the tracks where the trolley company's snow plow had thrown it. The driver of the milk sleigh did not turn out and the two vehicles came to a stop. The driver asked the motorman to back up a few feet to the corner so that he could turn off into Maiden Lane without mounting the high snow bank. This Motorman Roe refused to do and an argument followed. Both men stood on their rights or their dignity until the passengers in the car grew weary of waiting and left the car and continued on foot to their destination.

Officer Fatum was on his beat uptown and noticed the tie-up. He went down to investigate and arrived while the argument was at its height. In a moment the trouble was straightened out by the driver turning off the tracks to the right and allowing the car to pass. Trolley cars have a right of way over their own tracks. However in view of the fact that the trolley line is responsible for the huge banks of snow which are thrown up from the middle of the street to the roadway on both sides making the streets in some places almost impassable, favors are sometimes appreciated and assistance in helping the trolley line maintain its schedule and carry its passengers with as little delay as possible instead of compelling them to walk.

MRS. DEGROFF CELEBRATES 92ND BIRTHDAY ON NEW YEARS

The residence of J. V. DeGroff, at Montvale, was the scene of the usual family gathering on the anniversary of his mother's ninety-second birthday, on Sunday, January 1. Twenty descendants gathered around her to help her celebrate the unusual event. She was the recipient of many suitable gifts. Her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, from New York city, Jersey City, Philadelphia, Park Ridge and Montvale were present, and gifts from Kingston and Ulster Park, N. Y., represented those who were unable to attend. Although at an advanced age seldom reached, Mrs. DeGroff has retained the use of all her faculties, and except for the effect of a fall sustained seven years ago which makes it impossible for her to walk, was one of the happiest and brightest members of the birthday party. —Park Ridge, N. Y., Local.

Mrs. DeGroff is a native of Ulster county and spent the greater part of her long life in the town of Esopus. She is the widow of Matthias DeGroff, remembered as an old-time stage driver who carried the mail between Rondout and Highland many years ago.

KING FREES 1,000 MORE SINN FEINERS

Second Grant Includes All Irish Political Prisoners—Harry British Troops Out of Ireland Before Elections.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, Jan. 12.—King George today issued a royal proclamation granting amnesty to all Irish political prisoners.

This was the second grant of amnesty since the Irish peace treaty was signed. The first covered minor offenses and released about five thousand Sinn Feiners from jail.

The number of prisoners released under today's royal proclamation totaled exactly 1,000. They include 26 convicted of murder and 121 convicted of attempted murder.

Amnesty extended to all offenses committed in Ireland from political motives prior to the Irish armistice which began July 11.

The release of the prisoners will start at once.

There were 18 Sinn Feiners in Belfast jail under sentence of death. Execution of the condemned men upon the gallows was to have begun in Belfast this morning.

The British authorities at Dublin are prepared to turn over to the Irish Republic arms, ammunition and equipment to equip it fully for the preservation of order. The minister of defense in the Dublin provisional government has been informed that the British will turn over any barracks or other buildings necessary for the housing of the Irish troops.

Belief is current in government circles that President Griffith will hold an Irish election within two months and that the new parliament will be assembled immediately to draw up Ireland's first national constitution.

The Irish office is rushing the evacuation of Ireland by British military forces because British officials are convinced that the first election in the Irish Free State will be marked by conflicts and disorders. It was learned this afternoon.

The British cabinet is convinced that interference by British soldiers or police or any attempt by the British military authorities to maintain order in Ireland might lead to tragic consequences. In fact, some officials go so far as to predict that interference by the British military forces might wreck the Irish Free State.

Consequently it has been decided to let the young state meet its first gigantic test of strength without molestation from the outside.

MIDDLETOWN MAN INVENTS A MACHINE TO GO WITHOUT FUEL

The Newburgh News says: Asserting that he had devised a machine, which, drawing its power from the earth and air and not requiring fuel, solves the problem of perpetual motion, N. H. Storms of Middletown is in Newburgh superintending the construction of a machine which he says will revolutionize the power problem. He says it can be produced at a cost of about $100 for 100 horsepower and from there on at a cost of about $1 per horsepower.

Mr. Storms is a carpenter employed on the O. & W. Railroad and resides at 139 Wisner avenue in Middletown. Asked how he started the machine he replied "That is a question which I cannot answer just now. That in fact is the chief secret of the invention."

CITY HOTEL IMPROVEMENTS.

General Overhauling to Be Followed by an Extension.

Plumbers, masons, carpenters, electricians and painters are busy at the City Hotel, Main street, under the direction of Charles Michaud of Michael-Campbell Co., general contractors, making alterations to the lower floor of the hotel property. The room formerly used as a dining room will be converted into an office with reading and waiting room. New electrical fixtures will be installed and the ceiling and side walls repainted. A china white in the spring Mr. Millonig expects to build an addition at the rear of the hotel to contain several additional rooms, in order that he can meet the requests for rooms made almost daily at the hotel since he assumed the ownership.

SHOVEL YOUR WALK.

Do Unto Your Own Walk What You Expect Others To Do.

Now that the biggest snow storm so far experienced this season is over with householders should do unto their own walks what they expect others to do to their walks—shovel them off. Owing to the fact that a number of householders neglected to shovel the walks before they went to work this morning there are still a large number of unshoveled walks about town. The street department had a number of sleighs at work in the business sections clearing away the snow drifts, and it was expected that before night considerable progress would have been made.

HELD AS BURGLARS AT WOODSTOCK

Three Arrested for Entering Mrs. Petersham's House and Are Held to Have Goods Stolen at Other Places.

Pending a further investigation Emerson DuBois, a negro, aged 35, Orville W. Purdy, white, aged 34, and Earl Carnright, white, aged 36, are being held at the Ulster county jail on a charge of burglary in the third degree. The men were arrested on warrants issued by Justice of the Peace George W. Flynn of Woodstock on a complaint made by Mrs. M. Petersham of that place whose house was burglarized Saturday night.

Sheriff Kolts with his son Louis Kolts, a deputy sheriff, went to Woodstock Sunday and with State Trooper Cunningham made an investigation, which they continued on Monday and Tuesday, and on the latter day arrested DuBois and Purdy. They brought them to jail, and Wednesday they were taken back by the sheriff and Seth Jocelyn to Woodstock, and arraigned before Justice of the Peace Elwyn. Meanwhile it had been learned from Purdy and DuBois that Carnright was implicated in the burglary and he, too, was arrested and arraigned with the other two on a charge of burglary.

From what the sheriff, Mr. Jocelyn and State Trooper Cunningham learned, other houses besides that of Mrs. Petersham had been burglarized. Considerable booty had been found stored in a haymow of a barn of Purdy all boarded in, much of which is not the property of Mrs. Petersham. Carnright also produced a quantity of stolen goods, and it is said that DuBois has booty hidden.

The investigation will be continued to learn what other places have been burglarized by the trio. A china closet, furniture, clothing, dishes and household goods are included in the stolen goods so far recovered.

GIRL DEAD, FATHER BURNED AS HOME BURNS

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Johnsburg, Pa., Jan. 12.—Trapped in her home, which burned like kindling, the 14-year-old daughter of Alfred Meliquett, living a mile outside of this borough, was burned to death this forenoon. Her sister, 12 years old, got out of the burning home, but not until she had been burned so badly that there is no hope for her recovery. The father, in several vain attempts, rushed into the flames to save his girls, was seriously burned also, but will live. The origin of the fire is unknown. The tragedy is especially sad as within a year, death has claimed the mother and four children of the family.

It is believed that when they extinguished the light later, they unconsciously turned the gas jet on again.

BRIAND AND CABINET RESIGN CAUSING GRAVE POLITICAL CRISIS

French Government Without a Directing Head and Delegation in Supreme Council Without Guidance—Dramatic Scene in the Chamber—Action a Complete Surprise to the Public.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Paris, Jan. 12.—Premier Briand today resigned as a result of criticism over his policy in the supreme council meeting at Cannes.

The premier announced his resignation in the chamber of deputies during a violent uproar.

The cabinet's resignation went with that of the premier.

The most serious crisis European politics have known since the war has been precipitated by the resignation of M. Briand.

The premier's resignation not only leaves the French government without a directing head, but also the French delegation attending the supreme council meeting in Cannes.

M. Loucheur was left temporarily in charge of the French negotiations at Cannes, but it was understood that no decisions would be taken upon the issues of German indemnity and the proposed Anglo-French treaty of alliance until M. Briand returned from Paris.

News of the premier's action was a bombshell to the public, for it had been preceded by the announcement that the cabinet had approved the premier's policy at Cannes and had decided to support him throughout.

There was a dramatic scene in parliament this afternoon when the veteran statesman confronted his critics.

The spectators' galleries were jammed in anticipation of fiery debate.

Deputies shouted interruptions and fist fights were narrowly averted during the pandemonium that marked the debate. Adherents of former Premier Clemenceau took full advantage of their opportunity. They had sworn to overturn the Briand ministry and said that M. Clemenceau might be called upon to form a new government.

The Polneare-Tardieu faction, which has supported M. Paret, predicted that President Millerand would ask M. Paret to form a new ministry.

M. Briand had been Premier almost a year to a day. He was chosen premier for the seventh time on January 16, 1921 and immediately formed a new government. His election came as the result of a parliamentary coup identical with that of today.

The premier was chosen on his announcement of a policy to compel Germany to pay every penny of indemnity and to fulfill every clause of the Versailles treaty to the letter. Since the premier's recent trip to London, his opponents in the chamber have accused him of "going to Cannes with his hands tied by previous agreements and of sacrificing some of France's interests in the matter of reparations."

M. Briand's resignation came with spectacular suddenness and up to the climax of the battle, his friends in the chamber were claiming that he would secure a vote of confidence.

The premier, in his address, told the deputies that the proposed economic conference at Geneva was necessary to enable all nations in the world to reconstruct their commercial affairs and bring about a lasting "economic peace."

CROOK, SAFE, COMING SLOWLY

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 12.—"Steering south. Condition of vessel O. K." This was the reassuring message wireless to the army transport service office here early today from the transport Crook, carrying more than 1,100 men including 942 soldiers of the army of occupation, which sprang several leaks below New York on her way from Liverpool.

It was estimated that the Crook was out about 300 miles when the message was sent, proceeding at slow speed, and that she would not dock here before Saturday.

Because the Crook is in the winter trans-Atlantic course, little fear was felt today for the safety of her more than 1,000 passengers. Several big liners could be called to her aid at once in case of serious accident, it was pointed out.

QUEEN'S TEA GOWN

Royal Garment is Designed in Paris for Rumanian.

Dress is of Plum Purple Charmeuse and Silver Lace, Beautifully Draped in Front.

A lovely tea gown was recently designed in Paris for the queen of Rumania. This wonderful woman who has earned the title "the business Queen," continues to interest herself in the revival of trade in her country. She is showing an interest in Rumanian dressmakers, milliners, etc.

At her special request several important Paris maisons are preparing to open branch houses in the Rumanian capital and the queen takes delight in showing, on her own person, the latest and loveliest Paris models. She is, in a sense, a royal mannequin, and this from the noblest and most beautiful motives.

The tea gown in question was simple in design but particularly effective; also it was wearable. A woman who indulged in a picturesque style of dressing might well wear it at a dinner party, since the fashion of the day is in favor of transparent wing-sleeves and draperies attached to the back of the corse, which form a sort of train.

The dress itself was composed of charmeuse and it was beautifully draped in front. The lines were almost Greek, and the way the soft satin was arranged over the bust was especially attractive. Then came the big lace mantle which formed sleeves, or which at least veiled the arms, and that in a most becoming manner.

This is a model capable of considerable variety. Any color might be introduced in the satin dress and the transparent mantle might be in black or white lace, or in net traced over at the border with metallic threads. Or again, it might be chiffon with a simple embroidered border.

The important thing is that the dress should be soft and supple and the mantle transparent and fragile-looking. For the latter fine black lace would be the idea, and such a mantle might be worn over several different gowns. One of the most popular ideas of the moment, in Paris, is fine black lace shown over white satin, with a touch of subtle color at the waist or breast. With a costume of this order very low-cut black shoes and white silk stockings are worn.

FASHIONS IN BRIEF

They are wearing long gloves for many occasions.

There is a demand for felt hats in part gray and beige.

The peasant sleeve is a favorite for blouses of both plain and figured fabric.

Some of the new blouses worn with jacket suits are slip-on affairs, often being longer than the petticoat of the skirt and showing below it, giving a new effect.

Cloth hats for children are rivals this season of the long popular tam. These little hats usually have jockey crowns and soft-rolled brims, the brims frequently being stitched.

Plain net forms the foundation for the new girdles, the surface of the net being covered with tiny beads set in novel designs. The ends are finished with deep fringe of beads in single or double strands, or a row of head tassels.

Among the novelties of the season is the evening slipper entirely covered with feathers in several shades. Peacock shades are featured and also many vivid red and yellow tones. Usually the slipper is finished with a band of plain velvet at the edge and sometimes a jeweled buckle.

VELOURS TURBAN FOR MISS

Soft blue velours fashions this appropriate little winter turban. Its most interesting note lies in the touch of kidskin in blue, brown and red which finish the brim.

Heavier Fabrics.

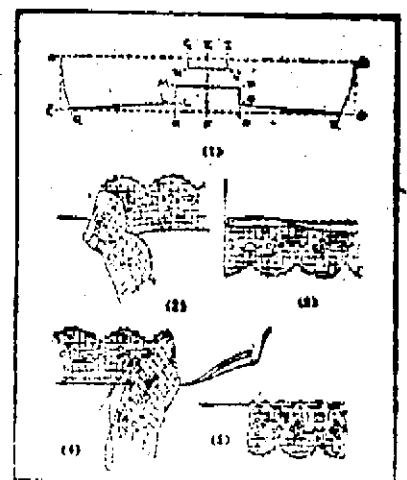

There is an indication that we shall adopt the heavier weight fabrics that are so prominently featured in the shops. Women are tiring of transparent materials and are glad to adopt the heavier crepes. Silks are heavier in quality than they were last season and one buyer is of the opinion that new cotton fabrics are going to be of the heavier weights. Satin surface fabrics are also appearing in great quantities.

TOT'S ONE-PIECE PETTICOAT

How to Make Garment for Small Child; Hangs From Shoulders and Assures Comfort.

It's comfort that counts most in children's clothes—especially their underclothes. They ought not to draw or bind anywhere, that's why the petticoat that hangs from the shoulders is preferable to the old-fashioned petticoats with their fitted waists and heavy gathered-up skirts. There is something else in the favor of this petticoat—it's cut in just one piece.

Make a pattern as in diagram, Fig. 1. From A to E is 29½ inches; from E to B, 2½ inches; from B to C, 3½ inches; from C to D, 1½ inches; from D to H, 4½ inches; from H to Q and Pattern for Tot's One-Piece Petticoat from D to H, 1½ inches; from Q to K and from N to R, 2½ inches; from L to M and from P to O, 3 inches. Points E-F mark the top of the shoulder.

Take up a dart on the shoulder. In such materials as nainsook or long cloth, a French seam at the underarm gives a neat finish.

Lay the lace on the right side of the goods and stitch, as in Fig. 2. Roll the edge of the goods and, on the wrong side, stitch a second time, as in Fig. 3. Machine-made lace has a gather thread woven in the top. See Fig. 5.

In sewing on lace by hand, roll the edge of the goods and whip on the lace with over-and-over stitches, as in Fig. 4.

EXTENDING LIFE OF CLOTHES

Renovating and Dyeing Important; Tint Bath Makes Faded Linen Like New.

A very important step in the process of renovation is dyeing. For that the new dyes that come in powder or soap form are much easier to handle than the older kind of dyes that require boiling. A faded linen will look like new after it has had a dip in a tint bath and been carefully laundered.

When your material has been thus freshened the next step is to decide upon the kind of remodeling it fits it best. Sometimes a dress or a suit is only a touch to give it newness and style. New collars and cuffs made by hand after the style of the expensive sets in the shops, and trimmed with lace from your supply box, will improve any gown. Embroidered panels made from an old georgette frock will make a silk gown fit for any occasion.

Any skirt worn last year can be altered by making it narrower and lengthening it until it reaches the step. The material gained by narrowing the skirt can be used for a yoke to lengthen it, or it can be put into sections of various widths and lengths, which can be sewed on a foundation skirt, with the widest section at the top and the narrowest at the bottom. Other methods of lengthening are putting in rows of insertion, letting out tucks and taking out and facing hems.

ORIENTAL STYLES FOR 1922

National Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers Recommend Styles for Coming Seasons.

Oriental styles and low waistlines with wide, graceful sleeves and the skirt slightly longer, but still short enough to retain a youthful appearance, were recommended for the spring and summer of 1922 by the National Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers' association, in convention recently at Cleveland.

The combination of materials, plaids, satins or taffetas with plain cloths is suggested, with ornaments of cut steel nail heads, angora wool, braids, stitching, leather trimmings and buttons.

Suit, roomy sport coats will be popular, it is believed. Some are to be belted, while others fall in loose lines. Patch pockets and notched, "military" and soft rolling collars are expected to be in demand. Bloused coats with wide, voluminous sleeves and low waistlines also are designed.

Three-piece suits are expected to be popular, the dress made on a straight hanging line to be worn with a jaunty little loose type coat or a "smart" little cape.

Fans of Coque Feathers.

Several of the foremost couturiers of Paris are showing novelty fans of coque feathers in delightful shades of fuchsia, cerise, jade green and dove gray. These are mounted on two straight sticks of tortoise shell. The coque feathers are large and rather straight, with only a slight curl at the tip. They are mounted at the side of the shell stick so that they project at different angles, thus giving a very wild and disheveled appearance while making a fashionable and most unusual fan.

Night-Bindness.

What is known as night-blindness is a rare condition in which a person towards evening finds that objects are becoming less and less distinct, and at last he is totally blind. This may occur without previous warning and cause great alarm, but the next morning the victim of the condition finds to his delight that his sight is restored. This is repeated every night, but at last the eyes become so weak during the day also, that the victim may become partially or totally blind. This strange affliction may be epidemic. It has attacked bodies of troops exposed to great fatigue and the glare of the sun's rays. It is seldom met with in temperate climates, except among sailors just returned from tropical regions. It is frequent among the natives of some parts of India, who attribute it, as our own sailors do, to sleeping exposed to the moonbeams. The most probable cause of the affection is, however, exhaustion of the power of the retina from over-excitement, or from excessive light, so that this organ is rendered incapable of appreciating the weaker stimulating action of twilight or moonlight.

Find Gold in Coal.

In describing the Cambria coal field of Wyoming, an expert mentions the interesting fact that gold and silver are present in small quantities in the coal, says the Christian Science Monitor. From the occurrence of iron pyrite, which is distributed throughout the coal seam, it is suspected that this mineral carries the precious metals. The coke made from the coal is used in the smelting works, and averages from one to two pennyweights of gold a ton, which is sufficient to compensate for a high ash content. There has been a similar occurrence in South Africa. The coal occurred in small seams running through the quartzite ore, and in places was quite rich in gold, the ash being colored a bright purple by the finely divided particles of metal.

Too Many Prefer Dark Side.

There is an old saying that "as a man thinketh in his heart so is he." I believe there is a great deal of truth in the adage, remarks a prominent Philadelphia physician. Also, I am sure there is a great deal of medicine in it. When a man begins to grow gloomy, looks on the dark side of every question, sees the shadows and not the lights; when he begins to go about with a long face and tells his friends and neighbors what ails him—he is on the road to sickness and perhaps death. The fellow who smiles as he travels along the road of life seems to chase away the demons that are forever looking for an inroad on health. So cheer up. That is what I would tell every one of my patients if they would let me, but most of them prefer to look on the sad side of life.

Question for Evolutionists.

Horses tails, splendidly mounted, are parts of the regal regalia of some royal personages in the East, where the plague of flies is an incessant nuisance. Naturalists say that originally the horse was a tiny thing not much taller than a wire-haired terrier. But apparently it was always meant to live where flies abound, its tail is such a splendid fly-swatter. Why it should not have developed a hide perfectly insensible to fly bites, or the presence of flies, is one of those things the evolutionists do not seem to have inquired into. It should have been as easy to develop a horse in that direction, as in that of growing coarse hair on its tail, and making that signaling machine into a fly-whisk!

Peanut's "Home" Unknown.

Like many other extensively cultivated plants, the peanut has not been found in a truly wild state, and hence it is difficult to fix upon its habitat as the place which it would call home. So widely has it been cultivated in eastern countries that some botanists have attempted to trace its spread from China to Japan, thence through the East India islands to India and thence to Africa, where in the Seventeenth century it was so extensively cultivated and had become such an important article of native food that the slave dealers loaded their vessels with it, using it as food for their cargoes of captives.—Exchange.

Cheerfulness Preventive of Disease.

"Bad health is often due to mental disease," says a prominent physician. "Without advocating any of the new theories now existing, I am sure that most of the ills to which flesh makes itself heir could be dispensed with if people would cultivate that most simple and useful of all mental states—cheerfulness. From my experience I note that very few cheerful people are sick as a rule. They are too busy smiling to themselves or thinking sunny thoughts to be caught in the throes of sickness. If people the world over were constantly using this boon to mankind—cheerfulness—most of us doctor folk would starve to death."

Fireflies.

The dictionary defines a firefly as an insect which has the faculty of becoming luminous; a lampyrid or elaterid beetle which emits some phosphorescent light from organs in some part of the body. One of the commonest American species is a lampyrid, Photinus pyralis, "vulgarily called lightning bug." The larva also is luminous, and the child who thinks he has found the business end of a firefly resting in the grass may be informed that this is the larva. The Encyclopedia Britannica is inclined to the belief that the light shed by a firefly is a signal to mate or comrades, thus affording recognition in the dark.

Commander Evangelina Booth, of the Salvation Army, in an announcement.

ment made at San Francisco, where she had gone to attend a conference of the Organization Congress, says that if the modern women would think more of "lending a helping hand" than worrying about their next bridge game and other "useless" recreations, poverty and homelessness would disappear from this country in a short space of time.

Alarm for Banks.

An electric alarm system has been tried in the Bank of Hamilton. The interior of the bank using this alarm is wired and a number of electric buttons placed in secret places. On the wall outside a siren alarm is attached. If a robbery is attempted the staff push their buttons and the alarm automatically shrieks a warning on the street. A test was made in one of the branches in Toronto and when the siren called four policemen rushed into the bank prepared to fight handily.

Mexican Love of Color.

Through years of living among Americans on this side of the river, the Mexicans still cling to the old mode of dressing. Those who have come over more recently hold still more tenaciously to the Mexican dress. The men wear big broad-brimmed sombreros, and the women still swathe their heads in long filmy mantillas. Where the men have the financial means to express themselves in dress, they often wear trousers with gold braid down the outside. Bright colors are the glory of the women and girls. Young girls who have not been influenced by American ideas of dress will almost invariably buy a violet pink dress for gala occasions and street wear.

Order Out of Confusion.

One of Washington's most valuable characteristics was the faculty of bringing order out of confusion.—Hawthorne.

Puzzling Picture.

Mr. W. Reid Dick, the famous sculptor, tells an amusing story of a Cockney couple on a visit to the Royal Academy. One picture in particular attracted their attention, and they gazed at it long and earnestly. His title in the catalogue was "Hawking in the Olden Days." "Awking in the olden days," murmured the puzzled "Erry," frowning his brow. "Well they didn't arf do it. My word, 'orse-back an' all." "Rather," agreed "Arry." "But wot are they 'awking?" "Blessed if I know," responded the still helpless "Erry." "Unless they're trying to sell their parrots."

RAILROAD RETROGRESSION.

There is one cause of this country's slackened industrialism in which the effects of the war or other accidental conditions are in no way concerned. Railroad building is at a standstill. For many decades railroad building was one of our most important industries, an industry that steadily increased in magnitude until the record year of 1887, when 12,875 miles of new track were built. After that period of vast extension there was a slow decline in production during about two decades. In recent years the decline has been rapid and now railroad building is more than at a standstill. Although more than 475 miles of new track were laid in 1921, according to the Railway Age 1,675 miles of old track were abandoned, making the net loss 1,200 miles. During the past five years more than 5,700 miles of unprofitable track have been abandoned, while only 3,200 miles of new road have been built. The country now has 2,500 less miles of track than it had in 1917.

With the financial plight of the railroads as reported, this retrogression seems bound to continue for at least some time, but surely railroad building has not reached its end, no matter how serious motor-trucking or other developing competition may become. There is still much relatively new land to be developed by railroads as population increases. But whatever the future prospect may be, the effect of the present conditions is obvious. An industry that formerly gave employment to hundreds of thousands in laying track, manufacturing locomotives, steel rails, cars, etc., has practically ceased, except in the matter of repairs and renewal of rolling stock.

A SURPRISED MODERN.

Modern writers of history as well as of fiction too hastily assume that the "old fellows" who preceded them failed to face the records or the facts of life in a proper, open-minded spirit. And modern readers too hastily adopt this view of modern producers. Hence the amazement at the completeness and the readability of Gibbon's "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire" now expressed by a correspondent of a metropolitan newspaper. "I am enjoying this masterpiece," he writes, "as I have never enjoyed anything I have ever read, and, strange as it may appear, so interesting has this book been to me, and so wonderful the world it opened to me, that in several instances it kept me awake nights for hours thinking of the wondrousness of it all. And yet there are some who say Gibbon is dull. No novel I have ever read had such an effect on me."

Yet Gibbon wrote his great history during the last quarter of the eighteenth century, giving it time, labor and research to an extent that could be expected of few if any modern writers. He defined history as a record of the crimes and follies of mankind, but made it far more comprehensive. The vast completeness of his work does not imply dullness, for Gibbon was a great story teller as well as a master of literary style. It would be hasty to assume that he has said the last word about even so old a subject as the Roman empire, but his great work may well remind some of the over-confident and iconoclastic moderns that genius is more than point of view and that some of the "old fellows" will live longer than most of the new ones.

Some of the legislation offered by the Democratic organization would make an almshouse of the state. But the people of this great state have some self-respect and some self-reliance and are willing to support the state rather than let the state support them. But the Democrats have an idea that what they offer catches the crowd. Crowds, however, are not unwise these days as to what is going on in the world.

Governor Miller is at work on a plan to provide the people with cheaper light, heat and power from the water resources owned by the state. His object is to do the most he can with that which is owned by the people and in the interest of the people who own it. He is determined that the power shall no longer go to waste if he can help it, particularly when the people should derive a substantial benefit. The Governor's idea is to act in the interest of the whole people. This is the idea of a working governor, one who can sense the duties of a chief executive.

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. Do sea gulls use nests?

Yes, a nest is constructed of grass, moss, seaweed, and even bits of punky soft driftwood, gathered into a little heap. If the edge of the nest becomes frayed, it is repaired with fresh grasses and bits of seaweed.

2. Do eels have jaws?

True eels, Anguilla, do, the lower jaw projecting somewhat. Lampreys, often called lamprey eels, do not have jaws, and are an entirely different order of fishes. Their mouth-parts in both brook and sea varieties, consist of a sucking apparatus, a disk armed with sharp teeth, with which they rasp the flesh of the prey, gradually sucking down the shreds until a large hole has been made.

3. Of what country is the common house cat native? Why do we find no reference to cats in the Bible? Weren't they known in Bible times?

Domesticated in Egypt, so long ago that it certainly is curious no mention is made in the Bible, as it seems probable these pets must have been introduced into the Holy Land. There were two species of cat wild in that country, also. Smith's Bible dictionary (very exhaustive) gives one apocryphal reference, and one each in Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Psalms, the latter three as "very doubtful" and only possibly referring to cats, but not actually mentioning them.

VASSAR WANTS ULSTER GAZETTES

The Department of History of Vassar College is anxious to procure as many copies as possible of The Ulster County Gazette of January 4, 1800, for the purpose of study, and has issued a small leaflet which explains the matter.

The leaflet states:

"The Ulster County Gazette was established in Kingston, New York, in 1788; the only known original issue of the year 1800 is that of May 10; no original copy of the number for January 4, 1800, has ever come to light. There have been, however, so few than twenty-one spurious editions bearing this date. They contain an account of the funeral of George Washington, enclosed within heavy black lines. They appeared in great number about 1850. The Library of Congress has listed these different spurious editions and above the variations in them. It has also published a circular of information, giving a brief history of them, and suggesting some of the evidences of spuriousness that characterize them all."

An exhaustive study of them has been made by A. J. Wollhagen; it may be found in the Quarterly Bulletin of the New York Historical Society, April, 1917.

"It is significant that about the same time the notorious Commonwealth Mercury was published in England. This purported to have been printed in 1658 and it contained an account of the funeral of Oliver Cromwell. Since two hundred years intervened between the ostensible date and the true date, this spurious paper is much more crude an imitation of a possible paper than is the Ulster County Gazette of January 4, 1800."

"In America, genuine reprints of famous newspapers are issued on anniversary occasions, or for advertising purposes, but these are different in character from spurious newspapers."

"Thousands of copies of the Ulster County Gazette, January 4, 1800, are doubtless found in homes all over the country, cherished as originals, but absolutely without value as such. The New York Public Library has nine copies, all of them different. The Vassar College Library has three copies, two of them alike."

"The Department of History, Vassar College, is anxious to secure as many copies as possible and would greatly appreciate the gift to the college library of as many copies as their present owners are willing to part with. The numbers have, as far as known, no commercial value, but they are of great service in our work in history."

From among the millions of the fake issues, Vassar ought to be able to collect enough copies to supply not only every present student at the college with at least two copies, but also every student who ever has been enrolled there and all those who may be enrolled for the next one hundred years.

There are many copies of the various editions still floating around Ulster county. Instead of throwing them away, will not their owners send them to the Department of History of Vassar? It can be seen readily how valuable a collection of the various issues would prove to a college library, particularly when the study of history is concerned. And Vassar has only three copies—"two of them alike!"

PRINCE HMA QUARTET SANG FOR THE ROTARIANS.

Kingston Rotarians who are not theater-goers now know why the Prince Hma Quartet draws such large audiences and is spoken of with such great enthusiasm by all who have heard them. The quartet members were guests of the Rotarians at the luncheon Wednesday and, fortunately, the kidnapped piano having been restored, proceeded to fill the room with melody. Probably wishing to show off before company, the Rotarians were also unusually enthusiastic in their own vociferations, singing such appropriate selections as "Jingle Bells" and "In the Good Old Summer Time." After the quartet had given several selections, John Gregory's Only Quartet gave an educational, uplifting and inspiring rendition of "Lull" and "The Goldenrod Spider," which entranced the visitors and opened up to them new and undreamed of achievements by the human voice.

DEBATERS BACK FROM RUTGERS

Kingston High School's Team and Subject Chosen—American Rhodes Scholar Talk of Oxford.

The Rutgers Intercollegiate Debating Conference was one of the best in a long time. At the conference Saturday morning a number of amendments to the by-laws were proposed, two by Arthur Flemming, the Kingston High School's official debater, but they were not passed. Only a few minor alterations were made to the by-laws.

There were 15 proposed questions on the first ballot. Only the official debater was allowed to vote upon any of the questions. The second ballot was a survival of the fittest in that the five questions recipient of favorable majorities were thereupon voted for once more. As a consequence the following two were selected:

Resolved, that the United States government should immediately grant independence to the Philippines.

Resolved, that the great powers should reduce land and naval armaments to the point of providing only for the policing of their own territories.

At the close of the general conference the group conferences were held to order. In the Central Hudson Valley group conference, consisting of the Kingston, Newburgh, Beacon and Poughkeepsie High Schools, it was finally agreed upon that the first question should be the subject of debate amongst these schools.

Kingston and Poughkeepsie then voted for the right to first choice of either the place wherein the debate is to be staged, or the side of the question they wish to uphold. Poughkeepsie High won the toss, which leaves the choice of sides to Kingston High School, which has one week to arrive at a decision. In this conference it was also agreed upon that one man on each team should give the rebuttal.

Saturday noon a delicious banquet was served with covers laid for 300 delegates, following which Professor L. Perrier, a former dean of Rutgers and an eminent professor of Greek, was the first speaker. Calvin Colledge was unable to be present.

Professor Perrier spoke of the great value of debating, first, to the individual who is trained to speak convincingly before a critical audience and who is taught to control his thoughts forcibly while on his feet; second, to the value of debating to the school, which the debater represents as important, for a school that has a successful debating team is rated high and debating carries the student body to a different field of competition, away from the athletic side of scholastic life, thus providing an avenue for school spirit. And no less respected is the debater than the athlete.

The second address was unusually interesting to the delegates as it was delivered by an adept and vigorous speaker, Roy M. D. Richardson, an alumnus of Rutgers and a winner of the Rhodes scholarship to Oxford University where he is at present studying for his master's degree.

At Oxford University the life is very different from that of the new school institutions of erudition. Mr. Richardson's topic was "The Old World and the New" in its relation to these diversities. As a matter of comparison the Christmas recess covers a period of six weeks; the Easter recess the same time. But at these two periods are great English fetes days when secular enjoyment is lost, the importance of this is not to be wondered at. The summer vacation endures four long months. But to the Oxford students vacations do not continually assume mythical and carefree aspects. Save for short periods of recreation during the disbursements of the university's session the students separate, seek little English towns and therein pursue their studies and exhaustive research work. Then when this is finished and the university life is resumed lectures by eminent professors, athletic and social activities fill in the remainder of the students' time.

English-born wishing to attend Oxford must file applications at birth. The Americans admitted to this select institution are the recipients of scholarships especially recommended by the authorities of the university for Americans.

Mr. Richardson asserted that Oxford is an institution of tradition, with a stern moral sense of honor maintained in every student. Some of the laws dating back 100 years are still in existence.

For instance, a very heavy penalty is attached to carrying a bow and arrow across the campus or down the streets of the university. Then to come up to modern times any person entering class from 9:05 to 9:15 a. m. is fined two cents. With every minute up to 12:15 the fine commensurably increases. But any one appearing in class after 12:15 is automatically expelled from Oxford.

No student is allowed to frequent a dance hall or public taproom. In regard to their debating, speakers no time limit is set on the speakers, who frequently speak upwards of 45 minutes on one point. The object of the debaters is to cause the audience meriment and the speaker who elicits the most laughs from his listeners stands a greater chance of winning.

This concluded the 1922 intercollegiate debating conference at Rutgers college.

The Kingston High School varsity debating team has been picked, as follows, subject to change: Arthur Flemming, captain; Carl Skaneateles, Blair Muller, John S. Tremper, alternate.

On Friday over forty members and friends of the Auxiliary Club met at the home of Mrs. George Harshorn, where a business and social meeting was held. The ladies assisting Mrs. Harshorn as hostesses were Mrs. C. J. Eiting, Mrs. Abram Bloomer and Mrs. Shopland, and they proved ideal. Two new members were admitted, Mrs. R. Rownd and Mrs. Goldt. The first meeting of the new year was a recognized fact of woman's influence in the affairs of clubdom. A "New Year's tree" was a pleasing feature of the social part after business. There were gifts for all, and when this was finished the president, Mrs. R. H. Decker, presented to the Rev. F. A. Coons, in behalf of the members, a very handsome bath robe and to Mrs. Coons a beautiful silver bread tray. These gifts were accepted and responded in beautiful sentiments of esteem and friendship. The refreshments, which consisted of fruit salad and saltine wafers, delicious cake and coffee, and the social features add greatly to the pleasures of the club, and many never to be forgotten occasions have passed into the history of the Auxiliary Club. Thanks were extended the hostesses as the members left for their homes awaiting the meeting in February.

The councilor, Hazel Palmer, appointed the captain for degree team, her pianist, and members of team. There was balloting also, which was O. K., and they will initiate candidates the first meeting in February. The D. S. C. made a short address after installation, which was enjoyed and appreciated. Mrs. D. Kurtz, in a few well chosen words, presented to the treasurer, Miss E. Paltridge, a solid gold ring with the emblem of the D. A. upon it. This was a surprise to her and she accepted it in the same manner as given. That of loving thought and appreciation of the order, as evidenced by her in the order for eight years. A delightful social time was held and as the eaters they served a "bow lunch" and it was fine. The next meeting opens at 7 o'clock sharp, as a card party is to be held at that time, with refreshments.

Just a Hint for Grandma.
Hazel was spending a few days with her grandma. But grandma, not being used to it, forgot the good-night kiss when bedtime came, until she was reminded of it on the second night in this wise. Just as she turned away after tucking the little one in bed, a plaintive, homesick voice said: "My mamma always kisses me when she puts me to bed."

The Situation.
"The widower says his poor children need a 'new mother.' He's going to have a hard time to convince 'em. The youngest of his children is eighteen, and the prospective new mother, I believe, is about that age."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

DR. ELLIS TALKS ON ARMAMENT

To students at High School—War With Japan Would Be Witnessed By Minority Militant Faction.

The inclement weather conditions prohibited the public from attending Dr. Ellis's address on "Limitation of Armaments," which was given in the high school auditorium Wednesday afternoon, to an appreciative student audience. Dr. Ellis was introduced by Postmaster William C. DeWitt.

Beginning with the huge cost of war, Dr. Ellis said that the Civil War cost the United States government 7 billions of dollars, the Franco-Prussian War was projected at a cost of 3 billions, 200 millions of dollars and the United States government last year expended 2 billions, 600 millions. Ninety-two per cent of this money expense was money raised by taxation to defray the expenses of the country and went for pensions, interest on accumulated debts and the building of battleships. The last war exacted from the world's pocketbook 1 billion dollars.

Dr. Ellis explained that the conference was called for the settlement of the armament and Pacific questions. Japan in previous years has pursued a complicated treacherous system of intrigue in order to fasten her tentacles upon the Far East and the oceanic possessions of the United States. Effort on the part of the Japanese power to form secret and self-expanding treaties with Russia were met with treachery and firm refusals. For saying that Russia would constantly dominate against the Japanese, Japan switched to a treaty with Great Britain and in the course of her exploits Japan gained control of Korea and Manchuria.

If the United States should scrap her quota of battleships the loss would be millions of dollars, but it is to be reckoned with that the proposed naval holiday of ten years would be a saving of billions of dollars to the world. It has also been ruled that the respective nations shall put an end to the piratical depredations of the submarines and their maneuvers shall be bounded by the common acts of humane deportment. Airplanes and airships are not to be indexed as in human contrivances of war, for in peace times the distinct advantages of rapid transportation of the mails and commodities are invaluable.

Poor suffering China crept to the conference with an irrefutable list of wrongs which have long held her prosperity in the fetters of mediocrity and it is certainly the duty of the conference to see that China's wrongs are redressed. China demands that she be given the power to regulate her exports and imports, establish her own post offices, have Chinese courts throughout the land and be granted full territorial rights. At present China is infested with 10,000 foreign soldiers and the post offices of other nations. The foreign postal systems, especially that of Japan, are of nagatory importance to the nations who have organized them, as far as the handling of the mails is concerned. For instance, the Japanese have wrought great harm to the Chinese, in that they have used their postal privilege as a medium of swamping the country with opium, upon which drug the Chinese have placed a ban. The foreign nations also treat this privilege as a furtherance of their spy systems.

One outcome of Mr. Wilson's League of Nations project is the distinct advantage of having the treaties between nations openly arrived at and aboveboard. This is entirely contrary to the foreign custom by which only the formulaters of the treaties know that which is therein contained. If nations at the conference asked for the granting of favors they had to explain why they ventured their requests. As in the case of Japan when permission was granted the Japanese the right to keep the United States to have been built with the years of the Japanese school-children.

The Germans in the late war taught the will to victory, but rising above the barbarism of German Kultur the other nations must teach the will to peace. Thus a war involving the United States and Japan would not come as a direct plunge of the Japanese people but because the Imperial officials wished it. War depend upon the character and integrity of the people, and as a smoldering fire fanned by a brisk breeze springs into life, so might the underlying treachery of the Japanese character be kindled into war fare by the Japanese Imperialists who know only the will to war.

In conclusion Dr. Ellis said to remember the words of God "Blessed be the Peacemakers."

Fleischmann's fresh yeast

increases the action of the intestines

HUNDREDS of men and women have already found freedom from laxatives by eating Fleischmann's fresh yeast. Doctors are now agreed that proper elimination of waste matter should be brought about by food. One doctor comes right out and states plainly that the indiscriminate use of cathartics is one of the causes of constipation.

Physicians all over the country are recommending Fleischmann's fresh yeast because it is a fresh food, rich in those elements which keep the intestines healthy.

Try it out for yourself. Begin today by adding 2 or 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast to your everyday diet. Keep it up and see how normally and regularly your intestines act. You can get Fleischmann's Yeast fresh daily from your grocer.

Goldenrod Our National Flower.
Mexico has adopted the goldenrod, or prickly pear, as its national flower, and Canada the leaf of the sugar maple, remarkable for its beautiful coloring in the fall. By popular vote the goldenrod has been chosen as the national flower of the United States, though there has been no official adoption.

Well Supplied.
A prominent politician, although a Scotchman, relates a story against himself and his fellow countrymen. While on a visit to the Canary Islands, once he was feeling very lonely and inquired of an official, "Are there many Scotchmen in these parts?" "Not many," was the reply. "Just a few, but quite enough."

SHOVELERS BUSYOver a Foot of Snow Fell Wednesday
in Biggest Storm of Season—
Board of Public Works Starts Clearing City Streets.Kingston's first blizzard this season left over a foot of snow on the ground on Wednesday, and as the snowfall was accompanied by a heavy wind that blew throughout the day the snow drifted to a depth of several feet, delaying traffic.During Wednesday afternoon Ponchockie was shut off from the rest of the city, as far as trolley service was concerned, for a considerable time. The trolley road tried to keep the cars running through to that section of the city, but during the afternoon the fuses in several of the cars burned out. At one time a trolley car was stalled on the Abruzzo street switch and another on the Strand near Gill street. A car sent from the car barn to the rescue was spinning along the Strand and when near Harry & Pooley's boat-yard it suddenly shot off the tracks, and there was further delay until it was gotten back on.The two snow plows of the trolley road were kept running, and as a result traffic was back to normal this morning. The work of keeping the tracks open by the trolley plows was of great assistance to pedestrians living near the trolley lines as the tracks cleared of snow afforded excellent walking.All during the morning until householders and merchants had been able to clear off the walks the trolley tracks were used by everyone in walking to business.As usual the storm played tricks on the householders for the wind would blow one walk perfectly clear of snow while the adjoining walk would be hidden from sight under drifts several feet in depth.As far as learned, the storm did not do any damage about town.Some of the milk men, fearful that the blizzard would continue to rage throughout the night, got their men and automobiles out during Wednesday afternoon delivering the milk that would otherwise have been delivered this morning.The snowfall put a stop to all ice harvesting, but the work of clearing off the snow will be started, and ice cutting resumed as the storm did not injure the ice.There was but little delay reported on the railroads, and the mails were about on the usual schedule.
The city mail carriers had a difficult time delivering the morning mail today owing to the fact that they had to plough through snow to a depth in some places of three to four feet where the householders had not cleared off the walks.The board of public works this morning placed a number of sleighs and shovels at work clearing out the business sections. The snow plow attached to one of the big trucks of the board was also out and aided in clearing the way for traffic.
Throughout the county the roads leading into Kingston were drifted over to a depth of several feet in places and farmers and others coming into town found the going difficult until a road was broken through the drifts.The high school did not start its sessions today until 10 o'clock. All of the schools were well attended today considering weather conditions.WHIRLWINDS LOSE TO

ON-A-JOB, OFF-A-JOB JIM!

Being a Story
Of how Jim got on a job and why he got off it again.The further end of the ice pond was used by the young folks as a skating rink. Jim had watched them skating as he had worked on the ice, but he got a much better view from the cottage where Clarice served him coffee and doughnuts."Why aren't you out skating with them?" asked Jim."I was yesterday, but my skates are dull, and it's no fun skating when the ice is moist and the skates need sharpening.""Isn't there anyone around here who sharpens skates?"
"Not very near here, and we need someone too. Dad's got a carburetor, wheel down cellar, and several flies, but he is always too busy to bother with skates.""That's a good job for me. I'd like it, so please don't say no," as the girl began to demur. Jim insisted, and soon had a good edge on her skates. To keep himself busy while waiting for his clothes, he sharpened several other pairs that were near, all the time thinking that he might be able to make a job of sharpening skates for the next two days.He asked the girl's mother, who had just returned, for permission to use the wheel. She agreed and also insisted upon his painting a sign,
"Skates Sharpened." On his way home, he nailed the sign where it could be seen by the skaters.The next morning business was slack. In the afternoon, the High School children began to arrive, and work at once increased. The pond was in good condition and there was a great crowd out on it. Clarice, whirling from bank to bank with a speed—due to her sharpened skates, awakened the desire in every other skater's heart for Keeneredged runners, and Jim found himself overwhelmed with orders.The second morning was like the first, few skaters, less work. Jim had a chance to get out on the pond himself for a spin. He noticed a very stout woman on the shore, who was struggling with her boots. Always eager to assist, he approached her and offered to help."I've got these skates on at last,
though it has been an awful job.
I'm too fat for this sort of sport, but I do want to reduce, and thought maybe this would be a good way.
But I can't skate at all, so there's no knowing what may happen.""In that case, let me lead you around the pond.""That's just dear of you," gushed
the woman. "I'll accept your offer, on the only condition that you let me pay you."Already Jim had arranged his plan of action. He would spend the next two days teaching beginners how to skate, and this woman would be his first pupil. But that must be on the next day. He was still a skate sharpener. "I'll swing you around the pond today for good luck, and tomorrow morning, I'll go into the business as a professional charging for the lessons." She woman agreed readily. She was glad enough to call a halt after the first round. "The first day is always the hardest," she groaned."And I'm certainly soft!"
Jim returned to his sign, and discovered that another person had taken his place, and was trying to usurp his job. News of his work had spread, and near his station a second skatesharpener, with wheel, and outfit ready for business, had taken his stand. He glared at Jim, ready to defy him if told to go away.But Jim merely grinned. "That's all right," he thought. "I'm changing my job in the morning. There are grit enough skates to keep a man busy a week."Copyright 1922. Alice Williams

Health and Success.

A famous hotel manager, is quoted in Physical Culture as saying that business success is 90 per cent health. He added: "The greatest thing in the world is to feel that every bit of red blood in your body is backing you up in a definite purpose, and I think that the failures and the misunderstandings in business come more from people not keeping themselves in good physical condition than from any mental deficiency or lack of business ability. When you are feeling fit troubles make very little impression and are forgotten before they have a chance to sink in."GOOD HEALTH AND ATTRACTIVENESSmean much to the woman in the home and in society. The weak, nervous, tired, worn-out woman has not much chance in the active world of today. Chiropractic will overcome such physical weakness and bring strength. Consult us about it.DR. M. BROBERG

Mrs. Katherine Elkins Hitt, one-time wife of Washington and daughter of the late Senator Elkins, whose romance with the Duke of Abruzzi a decade ago kept the capital agog for several years, has obtained a divorce from William E. R. Hitt, son of Representative Hitt of Illinois. The Third Paris tribunal on June 20 last issued a decree which made the divorce effective seven days later, when Hitt failed to enter a demurrer against the French verdict. Both are here. Mrs. Hitt is at the home of her mother, the widow of Senator Stephen B. Elkins. Mr. Hitt has been staying at the home of his mother, Mrs. Robert R. Hitt. Since the Hitts returned to the United States on different ships, gossip and rumor have been rife in Washington.
It was accepted by their friends that they were divorced, but nothing was officially known about the affair. Rumor here has it that the Hitts see much more of each other since the reported divorce than they did before, and they are reported as getting along famously.

Everett-Leonard.

The most interesting and brilliant social event of the season at Cambridge, N. Y., took place at eight o'clock on Tuesday evening, January 10th, at the Presbyterian Church, when Miss Norma Dorothy Leonard, elder daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Walter A. Leonard, became the bride of Ralph Kenneth Everett of this city. The church was prettily decorated with solid banks of green, and the bride party stood under a bower of white narcissus. The bride's gown was of ivory white satin with duchess lace and pearl girdle, white tulle forming the court train. The bride walked into the church with her father, who gave her away. Prof. Nicholas, organist of the Presbyterian Church, played the wedding march from Lohengrin, also Mendelssohn's wedding march as a recessional. The maid of honor, Miss Evelyn Leonard, sister of the bride, wore pale pink with overdress of opalescent sequins and carried pale pink roses. The matron of honor, Mrs. C. Ray Everett, wore blue green broadened chiffon and carried salmon pink roses. There were six bridesmaids, Miss Lois Bartlett of Richmond, Vt. wore lavender crepe chiffon; Miss Molly McGhee of Waterbury, Conn., lavender crepe chiffon; Miss Marguerite Thompson of Annandale-on-the-Hudson, robin's egg blue crepe chiffon; Miss Ella Oatman of Cambridge, N. The ushers were Walter Robson of Hoosick Falls, Russell Dana and Walter Baisden of Kingston, John Donnan of Albany, Harry Curtis of Cambridge and Theodore Buckley of Cambridge, N. Y. The bride's mother, Mrs. Walter A. Leonard, wore grey and pink chiffon and silver lace. The groom's mother, Mrs. C. B. Everett, wore black chiffon embroidered in blue. He writes: "The Little Wonder Capsules relieved and they have been doing wonders not only in my family but with a couple of friends, one of them, who had to stop his auto on account of dizziness from gas on the stomach, has found that one capsule a day gives the needed relief. 1000 Eggs in Every Hen

New System of Poultry Keeping—Get Double a Dozen Eggs—Famous Poultryman TELLS HOW

"The great trouble with the poultry business has always been that the laying life of a hen was too short," says Henry Trafford, International Poultry Expert and Breeder, for nearly eighteen years Editor of Poultry Success.

The average pullet lays 150 eggs. If kept the second year, she may lay 100 more. Then she goes to market. Yet, it has been scientifically established that every pullet is born or hatched with over one thousand minute egg germs in her system—and will lay them on a highly profitable basis over a period of four to six years (time if given proper care).

How to work to get 1,000 eggs from every hen: how to get pullets laying early; how to make the old hens lay like pullets; how to keep up heavy egg production all through cold winter months when eggs are highest; triple egg production; make slacker hens bustle; $1.00 profit from every hen in six winter months. These and many other money making poultry secrets are contained in Mr. Trafford's "1,000 EGG HEN" system of poultry raising, one copy of which will be sent absolutely free to any reader of this paper who keeps six hens or more. Eggs should go to a dollar or more a dozen this winter. This means big profit to the poultry keeper who gets the secret. Mr. Trafford tells how, if you keep chickens and want them to make money for you, cut out this ad and send it with your name and address to Henry Trafford, Suite 921F, Canal Bldg., Birmingham, N. Y., and a free copy of "The 1,000 EGG HEN" will be sent by return mail.

K. H. S. ATHLETES RECEIVE LETTERS

Wednesday morning's assembly at the high school was one of those affairs that brighten the life of the student, cheer the athletes and promote school spirit, for the "K's." The emblems of honor were given to members of the 1921 football and baseball squads.

President Rowland, of the Athletic Association, presided, and introduced Arthur Flemming, who made a preparatory address to the student body, exulting upon the accomplishment of the squad and above all of the clean brand of football played by each player. Mr. Flemming's oratorical venture was a plain "knock-out." He presented the letters. Fourteen 7 inch first team "K's" were awarded for Varsity football and sixteen second team 5 inch "K's" to the second squad. Eight first team baseball letters were to be awarded to members of the 1921 championship team, but owing to the recent graduation of three of the Seniors only five were given out.

At the close of the presentation of the athletic emblems, Tom Rowland spoke of the love of the football men for their coach "Mac," otherwise Mr. Mac Intyre, and of the spirit of fair play, the ability of going down fighting and the ability to accept defeat without alibiing that he had instilled into every member of the team. Rowland then presented "Mac" with a gold football bought by the first squad for their mentor.

Somewhat embarrassed, Mr. MacIntyre accepted the token and in a brief address of acceptance thanked the fellows and told them that much more than anything he passed on to them was the spirit of boyhood which they had restored to him. Then "Mac" attributed much of the season's success to Mr. Herman, to his dauntless acceptance of whatever fate held for him, and to his invincible squad of scrubs, the factor which makes for a championship varsity.

Those receiving letters were:

Football, 1921 Varsity. Captain, Robert Case, tackle. Captain, Kenneth L. Davis, full-back.

Blair Muller, quarterback. Richard Gruver, center. Vernon Hechler, guard. Earl McLean, tackle. William Gornley, guard. Herbert Anderson, end. Stanley Colvin, halfback. Ross Vogt, halfback. Fred Dressel, halfback. Tom Rowland, end. Joseph Goldberg, end. Kenneth Hasbrouck, manager. Second team, 1921's. Captain, David Faulk. Fred Anderson, Bruider. E. Burgevin. J. Carroll. Canilitz. C. Snyder. Bisch. S. Goldberg. Hardenbergh. Mossinger. Maroney. Simmons. Scheffel. Schulters. Rott. Championship baseball. Varsity, 1921's.

Captain, J. Bott, short stop. Lester Canilitz, pitcher. Ross Vogt, first baseman. Blair Muller, third baseman. Robert Case, right fielder. Matthew Cahill, left fielder, graduated.

Maurice Davenport, center fielder, graduated. Vincent Van Brainer, second baseman, graduated.

Gold footballs were ordered for every member of the first squad and have been received. They are of very beautiful workmanship with the names of the player and his position engraved on the back of each, while on the front K. H. S. and 1921 have been engraved.

NEW PASTOR IS INSTALLED AT SAUGERTIES.

An audience approximating three hundred people assembled in the Reformed Church of Saugerties Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock to participate in the installation services of the recently chosen pastor, the Rev. Homer L. Sheffer, formerly pastor of East Greenbush, N. Y.

The Rev. James S. Kittell, D. D., pastor of the Bergen Reformed Church of Jersey City, preached the sermon, following which the Rev. Homer L. Sheffer was formally installed, the Rev. Leonard Appeldoorn of Fort Ewen, delivering the charge to the pastor, and the Rev. David M. Hunter of Newburgh rendering like service to the people of the church. The choir sang two anthems and the male quartet also rendered a selection. The service closed with the singing of the hymn, "God of the Prophets," the benediction being pronounced by the Rev. Homer L. Sheffer.

BANKERS OPPOSE TINKERING WITH FEDERAL RESERVE.

The members of Group VI of the New York State Bankers' Association, of which the local banks are a part, at a meeting held at Newburgh January 6, unanimously adopted a resolution "That it is the sense of members of Group VI of the New York State Bankers' Association, that it is opposed to the enactment of any legislation affecting the federal reserve system, without the approval of the federal reserve board and the committee of banking and currency in the senate and house of representatives."
